Grave To The Rave Update Now Live

If you recall a couple of months ago we kicked off the Grave to the Rave competition for our community of map makers. The winning entrants of this competition are part of the Halloween update currently going live on PC, Mac & Linux today. So what's in the update? You've got:

- Six-map-long ultra class vehicle-focused operation "Grave To The Rave" added to Freelance
- Resign and Resume ("Save") function added to Freelance (GIF)
- Interface color customization added to Settings (GIF)
- Updated Modkit & Map Editor DLC and a new community compilation
- Movement tweak while using twin stick-controls for all playable vehicles

More details about the update can be read in the Steam announcement - enjoy!

Many thanks to everyone who took part in the mapping competition, the winners of which were Aniviron, Briggs, Cosmic Crow and SCOREGOBLIN (and an additional thank you as well to Commander for their contribution).

Community Spotlight

It seems that when one of our monthly newsletters threatens to be light on information, somehow the community senses this and doubles down. First up is Project Dark Fox on Twitter with a commission of a Loyalist Rat King...

...MrUnimport imagines what it's like for SNC employees occupied with Joy Bus/Hell Ride...

..."We Live In Tough Times, My Friend" by Juntti...

...and Flyingdebris swoops in with "Mongoose Pilot 20XX" and "1st Person Tuk Tuk Driver" (click to enlarge).

And that's not even everything that got posted this month! You can find more if you head on over to #becks_best on our Discord server.

Next Month

Wait what - it's November already? We'll have some fancy GIFs from Brigador Killers development to show off next month. We hope you enjoy the new update until then.
