Intel Recovered: Exit Salida

Per your request, a recent delivery from one of our off-world couriers points to the existence of a figure known as Exit Salida among the Solo Nobreans. The current whereabouts of this "Mr. X" are hitherto unknown, and they were not among the list of formerly-active contractors on Novo Solo either. The following excerpt is provided for your attention.

Afterwards he only appears in certain classified and incomplete medical records: at a Spacer resculpting specialist, he was remade to suit the clandestine arts. His fingerprints were replaced with a high-performance generic grip pattern, and his memory was scrubbed of identifying marks: his family, friends, fellow soldiers...

What We're Up To

The writing for Brigador Killers is approaching the final stages now that the bulk of the script is dealt with. Putting the story aside, we also have a couple of other special surprises in the works that should appear come the holiday season.

Community Spotlight

We neglected to mention this last month, but many, many thanks to community members Bit Bitter and Hexenritter for boosting our Discord server. We now have a few new features, like better voice channel quality, 50 more emoji slots to fill, and a fancy custom invite background. Check it out if you're not already a member!

Via the #design_bureau channel, Zi has wowed us with their take on portrait images of Efi and MB.

Speaking of Zi, they once did a spin on Kiri's take on the Corvid logo. In turn, Kiri made that into a t-shirt of their own (check out the brief twitter thread for the whole process).

Lastly, and just in time for Halloween, community member Toast got a hold of one of Jack's models he uses for scale and made not just one but two videos of the Man From Volta dancing.

This is just a quick glance at what our community got up to in October. You can browse all of the above and more by checking out our #becks_best channel on our Discord server.

Next Month

In November we'll drop another track by MAVS, take a look at Brigador Killers' location, and browse another batch of community creations.
